Alumni Fall Homecoming

Three Reasons Why Every Alumnus Should Come Back:

FOOTBALL—ROLLINS vs. STETSON (reason enough in any man's language)

ROLLINS LAST GAME OF THE 1936 SEASON.

GEORGIE MILLER'S LAST GAME (anyone who has seen Georgie perform in any contest during his three years of varsity football will wish to see him carry the ball for the last time)

In addition to this, President Holt has invited the student-body of Stetson to spend the afternoon on the Rollins campus.

The following program has been planned to entertain all returning alumni and our guests from DeLand. You can't afford to miss any part of it. Come early and join in the fun and see one of the best football games ever staged in Florida.

Jack McDowall

And the Tar Seniors

BY PROFESSOR WILLARD WATTLES

John Witherspoon McDougall McDowall, master of the arts in psychology (Duke University, 1934), is now completing his eighth season as coach of the Rollins football team. Having proved during the fall term his proficiency by practicing what he teaches, in winter and spring seasons he teaches what he practices. Particularly during the earlier years of Jack's record at Rollins, when the going was heavier but more exciting, it was my privilege to meet in my classes many if not most of the men who made up the squad.

And it was also pleasant to find myself a frequent tag-along with Jack on the then more numerous invasions of hostile athletic territory to the north of us. My chief function, so far as it was evident, was to keep right at hand in critical moments prepared to offer head coach McDougall a five-cent cigar for him to chew on. Occasionally I muffed the pass, but usually found at least a King Edward.

Those were in the days before Johnny Tunis of the American Mercury (November, 1936) decided that Rollins along with Amherst, Navy, Yale, etc., is to be listed among the "semi-pros". I daresay it was news to Jack. Remembering the days—and years—from 1929 to 1934 when there were those who thought they thought that most of the Beanery waiterships and some of the porkier college scholarships were held by poets or some other brand of genius, it is not probable that Rollins so unexpectedly has become semi-professional overnight.

Each fall when the football season closes it is customary to say, "Rollins has given a good account of herself this year, but what of the next? Without Chet Ihrig, Bob Boney, the Pickard brothers, Will Rogers, Ed Cruger, Danny Contini, Ray Miller, Dave Schrage, Soc Chakales, Dick Washington, Georgie Miller and all their team-mates, how shall we make a team?"

And yet each season, for some strange cause, we do have a team, and we do have a record for sportsmanship, aggression, and team-play, that compares well with that of any other small college in the land. There must be some reason. Perhaps there are several.

One is Jack. Those who have seen him in action before a game, between the halves, or in some Georgia hotel after a victory or defeat, will know what is meant by stating, "It isn't what McDowall says but what he doesn't say that talks". He practices what he teaches, the psychology of "timing". Old-timers in former years will remember the game at Bowdoin, Georgia, or the battle-royal at South Georgia State in the fall of 1932 at the end of an undefeated season, score of 20 to 13, and Will Roger's last game.

Two is Rollins. Even before McDowall eased in, quiet as a zephyr and devastating as a typhoon, and during his first hard year, Rollins was never a quitter. And the student body stayed till the last to back a team averaging a weight of nearly twenty pounds less than team averages today, a team that played on hot afternoons in October with scarcely a substitution.

Three is the men themselves. Here is where most could be said. But all would be inadequate. And so in taking leave this year of men who have now played their last game for Rollins on the athletic field, we salute them with regard and respect, as they go out into the game with no referee but Father Time, Himself. And here they are for the Class of 1937: Georgie Miller, Chris Argyris, Goose Kettles, Chick Prentice and Paul Alter.

"The strong men keep coming on." Rollins will have a team next year, too, the same team, though different, but a team worthy of regard and loyalty, as is Chief John Witherspoon McDougall McDowall, psychologist.

FOOTBALL BANQUET

The annual Football Banquet honoring members of the Rollins Varsity and Freshmen teams will be held in the College Commons, Wednesday evening, December 16th at 7:30.

This year for the first time all Rollins men are invited to attend the banquet and it is hoped that a large number of alumni will show their interest in Jack McDowall's teams by being present. We especially hope that all Letter Men in Florida will be present.

Because of arrangements which must be made in advance it is absolutely necessary that all reservations be made not later than MONDAY, DECEMBER 14. RESERVATIONS WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED AFTER THAT DATE. The price is 75c each.

President Holt's Message

It would doubtless be considered an over-statement to claim that an honest alumnus or alumna is the noblest work of God, but it is safe to say that a body of loyal and successful college graduates is the greatest asset that any college can have, far greater than buildings, endowments, and all the rest.

Our very efficient and not to say persistent Alumni Administration consisting of Messrs. Hanna and Lewis have stated that I sometimes do not stress enough the fact that every son and daughter of Rollins should, if I may be permitted the phrase, "cough up" something annually. This sometimes may be large or small and naturally should be tempered in some degree to the purse.

My mother had a small income during the latter part of her life; but the income tax expert of the bank where she kept her deposits told me that she gave a larger percentage of her income to good causes than any of the millionaires and millionairesses whose returns he made out. Then some of you may have read in the Bible (you have probably heard of the Book) a passage in which a certain widow was extolled for giving all that she could.

I know that the Rollins graduates who are great successes will help their Alma Mater but I fear that not infrequently those who have small means think their gifts do not count. The Yale Fund of $100,000 a year is made up of small contributions; but it is the income on a two million dollar endowment.

I have been connected as a director and trustee of many philanthropic enterprises and causes, but I have never been connected with any public institution an investment in which would present larger returns than in the boys and girls who come to Rollins and those of us who attempt to influence them.

But as you are supposed to have gotten an education at Rollins, a word to the wise is unnecessary.

In Re: Rollins Football

By ROGER SHAW, Foreign Editor, Review of Reviews
and Trustee of Rollins

Football and Florida hardly mix. If and when they do, it is generally upon a gladiatorial basis which sends shudders of suspicion up one's spine. It is true that eleven hardy boiler-makers have made and unmade certain colleges of ephemeral fame; but such publicity is not exactly the kind of publicity that we want for Rollins. It may have been in the Gay Nineties, or in the horse-and-buggy era. But times have changed, and football fanaticism has moved from such colleges as Yale, Harvard and Princeton to other less favored spots.

As to Rollins specifically, football seems out of place. The weather is a factor. The academic and athletic standards prevalent in other Florida institutions, to be met in competition, is another. Cheap catering to the non-collegiate general and local public is a third . . . In the writer's opinion, seasonal sports suited to Florida are in order. Football belongs northward, and Rollins should make the most of Floridian blessings. Rowing, swimming, water sports of all kinds, golf and tennis, are strictly in order. Rollins has now the only crew in the collegiate Southland. This is a unique distinction—a proud one—and should be made the most of.

Rollins is not just one more college, with one more football team. It is something different, something apart; not a small third-rate arena for big third-rate ringers and tramp-athletes. Yet to compete, one must adopt the tactics of the opposition. Better not to compete at all.

Why insist on clinging unsuccessfully to a frost-bitten sport when one is revelling in tropical joys? Why not set the pace once more, Rollins alumni, by the abolition of alien, rather ineffective Rollins football?

Reviewing the

1936 Tar Football Season

By BOB HAYES

Starting the season with a squad comprised mostly of sophomores and transfers, Coach Jack McDowall has put together a rather formidable football machine that has gradually picked up momentum as the season progressed, winning four of their first five games.

Little Georgie Miller, playing his last of three brilliant years of football with the Tars, is the spearhead of the Rollins football machine. Georgie has racked up a total of 54 points, scoring nine touchdowns, in the first five games, to account for more than half of the Tar scores.

In addition to this outstanding feat, the diminutive Miller is a dependable defensive man and has time and again pulled down runners from his safety position to stave off scores. He also takes his turn at the signal calling task, which he performs in no mean fashion.

The Tars opened their season against the South Georgia State College eleven in Orlando October 9, after a short three weeks training period. Taking this game in an easy 26-13 fashion, the Tars showed promise of developing into a well balanced, better-than-average team.

Their second game, with the powerful Miami Hurricanes on the 17 of October in Orlando, wound up with the Tars on the short end of a 26-0 score. The Tar forward wall was no match for the Miami attack and fought a hopeless battle against the big time Hurricanes.

With an open date between the Miami and Wofford games, the Tars ironed out some of the flaws in their attack and bolstered their defense by shifting tonnage into the line.

When the Tars were turned loose against Wofford in Leesburg on the night of October 30, Georgie Miller ran wild to score four times before his fellow townsmen and the team cooperated in brilliant style to hang up a smashing 32 to 14 victory over the Terriers.

Following up this win, the Tars invaded the camp of the Newberry Indians on November 6, and returned with their scalp, taking the game by a 21-6 score. Playing a sluggish first half that ended 7-6 in favor of the Tars, they came back with power in the second half to rack up a total of 17 first downs and refused the Indians a single one.

With only two days to prepare for the Armistice Day meeting with the Union University Bulldogs in Orlando after the Newberry trip, the Tars took the field as the underdogs in the scrap with the SIAA leaders. Fighting and slashing from start to finish, they copped this dogfight by virtue of two long scoring jaunts by Miller and a rugged display of defensive strength. Score—13 to 0.

The squad boasts a roster of players that have played stellar football this season. In addition to Miller, the backs, Kirby, Daugherty, McInnis, Gillespie, Prentice, and the Brady brothers, Hal and Curry, have turned in commendable performances.

Along the line, Matthews, Thompson and Kishel at the tackle posts have developed into burly aggressive linemen. Daunis and Hume got away to a slow start at the flanks but in the later games have turned in good performances. The middle of the line has played consistently good ball all year. Hoskins, Justice,

CHRIS ARGYRIS-GUARD

Dennis, Argyris and Hayes alternate at the guard slots.

The lanky Goose Kettles returned to action after a year of inactivity due to a leg injury, to team with Dick Turk in handling the pivot post in a creditable fashion.

Injuries struck early this year to materially weaken the team in strategic spots. Carroll Goodwin was stricken with appendicitis following the South Georgia State game, in which he turned in a brilliant exhibition of defensive football at a tackle post. Ralph Little has been on the inactive list all season as the result of a dislocated elbow. Argyris was out of service several weeks with a cracked shoulder, and Curry Brady has been bothered all season with a shoulder separation.

With the team gradually improving, prospects for the remainder of the season are bright. Both offensively and defensively, the squad is beginning to function as a unit—and as a fighting unit.

The Tars next journeyed to Tampa to take part in the University of Tampa's Homecoming celebration where they sprang the year's biggest upset by fighting the Spartans off their feet and taking the game from their bitter rivals by a 7-0 score.

The Tar line that has improved rapidly as the season wore on put up a brilliant exhibition of defensive football to outplay the veteran Tampa forwards and hold the Spartans attack at bay. Daughtery scored the winning marker on a nine-yard smash from a double reverse play, with the ever-present Miller treat drawing the Tampans out of position. Miller, Daughtery and Curry Brady stood out in the Rollins backfield. Gillespie added the extra point to keep his placement-kicking record for the season unblemished.

The Tars scored midway in the second period after driving down to scoring territory twice before making the successful bid. After that the game resolved into a bitterly contested affair, with the Tars fighting desperately to protect their slim lead from the Tampans' determined onslaught.

The annexation of this game hoisted the Tars into second place in the Little Entente Conference rating, with five wins against one loss. Starting out as a mediocre sophomore eleven, Rollins College and Central Florida are beginning to realize that this year's edition of the Tars is one of the most powerful and successful teams ever turned out at Rollins.

Fred Ward

Concerning

Fred Ward

BY A BENCH WARMER

Casual spectators at a football game watch and praise the star, the open-field runner, the man who carries the ball across the goal line. Others see the co-ordination, the team-play, the plugged hole, the blocked antagonist. One or two names appear in headlines. Others are "also mentioned". But without the forgotten lineman there would be few stars.

Rollins College has long been lucky in having such a guard among its athletic line-up. He is taken somewhat for granted because he is always in his position, on the job. His friends know him as Fred. The rest of the name is Ward, perhaps just the right name, for the warder and the guard.

As assistant treasurer of the College and as long-standing secretary-treasurer to the Athletic Association, Frederic Harris Ward has never missed a practice or required a substitution. Quiet, cordial, dependable, he sees much, thinks more, says little, and "hoes his beans". And often the beans are sparse. Often the amount of gate receipts becomes more than a rhetorical question mark. Often Fred, and "E. T." as well, must go into a huddle to meet the obligations just incurred. But always the touch-down by the time the whistle blows, the bills are paid, deserving players have graduated from the College which has nurtured them and to which they have given of brawn and brain and broken bone or dislocated shoulder.

Long ago a blind man wrote, "They also serve who only stand and wait." Fred Ward stands but he does not wait. And perhaps when he sees these inadequate lines he will know what many college generations of Rollins men have felt but found it not so easy just to say.

1937 Hopes in

1936 Freshman Eleven

BY BOB HAYES

A woefully undermanned but fighting squad of Freshmen under the tutelage of Will Rogers enter into the last lap of their schedule with a record of one win against two close defeats. Their last game of the season was scheduled with the Stetson Baby Hatters on November 22.

Starting the season with only sixteen men on the squad roster, Coach Rogers steered his proteges through a tough schedule and moulded a powerful line and a fairly well-balanced backfield. The lack of reserve strength was the principal reason for their two early losses. The Tarlets completely dominated the play in these two contests until the latter stages of the games, only to have the opponents, reinforced with reserves, shove over the winning margins.

The Baby Tars opened the season against the powerful Miami Rats and fought on even terms with the Miamians until late in the game, when the Baby Hurricanes sent in a new eleven to shove over two markers and take the game by a 13 to 0 count. Wendell Davis, a quarterback from Boston, Mass., sustained a triple fracture of the shoulder in this fracas and was lost for the remainder of the year.

The yearlings next took on the University of Tampa Frosh and again battled the opponents to a standstill until the last five minutes of play. After Soc Soldatti, star guard from Somersworth, N. H., was removed from the game with a serious head injury, the Tam-pans drove through the weakened Tar line to score six points. Soldatti was lost for the remainder of the year, reducing the squad to thirteen players.

After these two narrow losses, the Baby Tars journeyed to Lakeland on Armistice Day and submerged the Lakeland High School Dreadnaughts by a 7-6 score. The Tar yearlings completely outclassed the prep schoolers, but a series of breaks and the lack of reserves prevented the score from mounting.

In meeting the Stetson Rats, Coach Rogers was faced with the same problem, the lack of reserves, and as a result the Tarlets will enter the contest on the short end of the odds. As in the Lakeland game, Rogers will have only two reserves on the bench.

The strength of the Freshmen is not to be judged by their record, for they have a pretty rugged little ball team and several of the first year men will be welcome additions to the varsity next year.

In the Baby Tar backfield, Joe Justice looks like the best bet for varsity material. Joe is a clever runner and a good passer. Joe Johnson stacks up as the next in line, with Bob Miller and Bill Daugherty showing plenty of promise.

The Tar line is the powerhouse of the eleven, and Don Ogilvie, 195-pound tackle, stands a good chance of making the first string next year. Soldatti and Swann, guards, are fast, good blockers as well as rugged defensive linemen.

McPherson, ineligible for the varsity this year, played stellar ball for the Rats at the pivot position, and Jack Hoy, an end, will give this year's regulars some strong competition in 1937. Joe Knowles, shifted from fullback to guard late in the season, packs 190 pounds of power and will be heard from next year, too.

Tossing away two chances to score, the Tarlets dropped their last game of the season to the Baby Hatters of Stetson by a 7-0 score at Harper-Shepherd Field, November 21.

Fumbles on the two and seven yard lines terminated the Rollins yearlings' scoring threats and although they outplayed the Stetson Rats, they were never able to muster the power necessary to score. Stetson scored in the second period on a 25-yard slant off tackle to rack up their margin of victory and were never headed.

Club Notes

Jacksonville

The following alumni and guests met at the home of Marilouise Wilkerson, 430 Dellwood Ave., Jacksonville, on November 5th: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wilkerson, Marilouise Wilkerson, Claudia Ambrose, Prof. A. J. Hanna, Sara Muriel, Gertrude Davies, Katharine Horton Gardner, Gretchen Harrell Quinn, Annabeth Wilson Carnes, Berkeley Blackman, Phoebe McDowell White, Gregory and Cornelia Williams.

In the absence of the president, Dr. James Parramore, Vice-President Wilkerson presided. Fred Hanna told of plans for chapel service in Jacksonville on January 17th, and the speaking engagements over the state by Dr. Holt, and in the schools by George Holt. Sara Muriel was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange dates for George Holt in the schools; and Willie Pearl Wilson, Katharine Horton Gardner, George Carrison and Kitty Pillsbury Buckman were appointed to assist Mrs. Richard P. Marks (Kathryn Slemmons) with arrangements for the Chapel service.

Miami

Interesting talks by A. J. Hanna, chairman of the Alumni Association of Rollins, and Richard Kiehnel, architect of the College, formed the program of the meeting of the Miami Rollins alumni club on October 30th, on the Mezzanine floor of the Columbus Hotel. Mr. Kiehnel spoke of the new dormitories and the recreational hall and other new features of the Rollins of the future.

New officers were chosen as follows: Lloyd Towle, president; Mrs. Stella Weston Tuttle, vice-president; Miss Dorothy Davis, secretary, and Miss Florence McKay, treasurer.

Attending the meeting were: George Salley, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Towle, George Spohn, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Caldwell, Miss Lois Hahn, Richard Kiehnel, A. J. Hanna, Miss Frances Arnold, Miss Dorothy Davis, Miss Florence McKay, Mrs. Stella Weston Tuttle, J. T. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Martin, Miss Jean Bellamy, Miss Vivian Mousselet and Miss Harriet Pitcorn.

Washington, D. C.

On the occasion of Mr. Fred Hanna's visit to Washington, the Rollins Club of Washington met for dinner at six o'clock on Tuesday evening, November 10, 1936, at Wesley Hall. There were seventeen Rollins Alumni present and three guests from other colleges.

The meeting was opened by Lottie Turner. Following this, everyone present introduced himself, giving his college year and what he was now doing. The first business of the club was the creation of office of Secretary-Treasurer. Constance Etz was suggested by Tony Merrill and was unanimously accepted. Mrs. Jerry Schutz offered her home in Arlington, Virginia, for the next meeting.

Dr. Stiles told his idea of what a college should be. He stated that he had seen many colleges, and that he believed a good college should have a fine library for education and some of the country club qualities for culture. It should also be something of a matrimonial bureau. He told how he happened to first come to Rollins. He was looking for a place to settle and found Miami and Winter Park most to his liking and finally chose Winter Park. President Holt heard of this and thus Dr. Stiles became connected with Rollins. He is in favor of the Rollins system, believing it to be like the European college, offering an opportunity for education but not forcing it on one. In Dr. Stiles' opinion that is the ideal way for a college to be.

Mr. Hanna spoke next. He agreed with Dr. Stiles on the value of examinations, providing the examinations were comprehensive. Mr. Hanna complimented the Rollins group on being able to bring in members from other colleges. The feature of Rollins this year is the opening of the new dormitories. These buildings make a great difference in the appearance of the college and make it possible to visualize the future outline of the college. Mr. Hanna is interested in collecting money from the alumni to help with the deficit caused by the new buildings. It is the hope that all alumni will give at least one dollar a year, although, no definite pledge is asked of them.

The meeting was then thrown open for questions. The following points were clarified. Rollins offers much scholarship aid to students. There are a little less than 400 students this year. All students are housed on the campus by aid of the new dormitories. The upper and lower divisions were discussed and the method of handling transfers was made clear. The tuition is now $1365.00 and there are no additional fees. George Holt's new job as director of Admissions was explained.

The following were present: Professor A. J. Hanna, Dr. C. W. Stiles, Constance Etz, Jonathan Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Dorothy and Hugh Seivert, Ivy Lewton Fletcher, Edwina Parkinson, M. B. Matlack, A. Clinton Cook, Anita Cross Bingham and Robert Bingham, Jane Folsom Berry, Anthony Merrill, Mrs. J. W. Schutz, C. D. Conway, Woolvin Patten, Walter Jordan, Frederick L. Lewton and Lottie Turner.

St. Petersburg

The Rollins alumni of St. Petersburg held a special meeting on October 18 at the Suwanee Hotel to work out with Fred Hanna a club program for the year 1937.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting during the first week in March at which time President Holt will be in St. Petersburg to fill several lecture engagements.
